KELANTAN WAXES FAT ON RUBBER

Steeping Climate of Malay
State Swathes Hills in Densest Forests.

Washington—American automobile owners unknowingly helped to pay the award of nearly $2,000,000, which the Malay state of Kelantan recently gave on court order to an Englishman Kelantan is waxing financially fat on rubber so the treasury probably found no difficulty in compensating the winner of the case, which, among other things, revealed how English commerce penetrated Kelantan back in the eighties and how the state was incorporated into the British empire in 1909.

Kelantan's present prospects and the improvements effected in its government are related in a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C. Has Mountains Florida Lacks.

"Think of the Malay peninsula as an elongated Florida tacked on south-east Asia. Singapore shall be Key West; then the southern boundary of Kelantan is approximately in the position of Orlando and the northern boundary is 100 miles above, that is at Jacksonville, Fla. Kelantan is 100 miles deep, which is a trifle more than half the width of Florida. Since Kelantan lies five degrees from the equator, it would be quite willing to trade mountains for a bit of Florida's latitude.

"Miami had a 14-inch fall of rain recently which seems to put it in the running with Kelantan where over 100 inches fall annually in the plains districts. When the figures are all in Florida's average will be shown only one-third as great. Kelantan's steeping climate swathes its hills in the densest of tropical forests. The jungle is matted above ground and matted below. An American surveyor boring for a bridge pier cut through 100 feet of crushed and rotting leaves and branches to find the bottom obstructed by a rotting trunk of a forest monarch that may have fallen more than a century before.

"Green is a tyrant in Kelantan. A native will cut out a garden plot in the jungle. By dint of industry he can keep the jungle back for two years' crops of tapioca root. Two years' abundant results in a growth 10 feet high, impenetrable without an axe. Acres of Virginia farms abandoned during the Civil war support 30-foot pine trees, but one can still identify the old corn rows. Ten years after the Kelantan garden patch is surrendered, only the practiced eye can distinguish the spot from natural jungle.

"Not not all of Kelantan is jungle. The plain in the northeast, one of the largest level regions in the whole peninsula, affords views where there are no trees to be seen for miles; only rice beds gleaming like windows of an enormous hothouse and grass pastures for cattle. Even the disordered jungle is giving way to the ordered rows of rubber trees. Rubber is now the most valuable export of Kelantan. Two other tree products coconuts and betel nuts, figure heavily in its trade. Betel nuts are a chewing gum substitute of the Orient.

"Kelantan offers a handy example of the East Indies before and after European intervention. Kelantan has been under safer for the ordinary native citizen and his family and a greater share of the profits of the citizen's toil come to him.

"The native conception of municipal government can be understood best by imagining a parallel political system set up in an American corn-belt town. In the first place the mayor would regard the community solely as a source of wealth for himself although he would not live there but instead in Chicago. Neither would he take the responsibility for governing the town or collecting the taxes for himself since he could farm out that work to an exacting foreigner. In Kelantan the foreigner would be a Chinese.

"Anyone in the community who committed a crime would be haled before a court in another city. Since the chief ends of justice, Kelantan style, are to support the judges, halt the damages and costs, together with what terrorism, bribery and black-mail exact, would go to these dignitaries since in fact the citizen's claim of getting out would be small indeed.

"Friends Must Feed Prisoners. It would be necessary to arrest the clean, well-kept jail of our hypothetical Mid West town to approach the old Kelantan standard. In a vacant lot there would be erected a high, solid-planked palisade. Inside there would be a double row of stout wooden cages about 30 inches from the wall and 6 inches off the ground. If the jail is crowded two persons can be put in one cage. Slats of the wall allow little light and air and there are no sanitary facilities. Prisoners who have entered such compounds in Malay states find that the stretch is overwhelming. The jail warden would be permitted to take in feed his prisoners with a bagful of rice taken from some source entering from the outside.

prisoners would ever get the corn. Unless relatives and friends paid them, a fee being charged for this by the warden, the prisoners would starve. Indeed, in Kelantan many die before death.

Heavy Tax Burden
Continuing the parallel the Mid West citizen's tax would have to be greatly augmented. There would be the poll tax to give a tribute to the capital. The mayor in addition would send a consignment of goods which the townsmen would have to buy whether they wished the goods or not and at an exorbitant price. At command they would have to leave their cornfields to the needs to cut timber in the wood lots, float it down the river, surrender it to the authorities and receive no compensation. In addition if the farmer should try to resist tyranny by abandoning his farm he would be fined for that.

"British intervention in Kelantan has wiped away most evils of this medieval system, which was far worse in practice than anything Europe ever knew in the blackest centuries of the Dark Ages. Even the native ruler, who is still nominal head of the state, reigns in greater luxury, because he actually gets the taxes he levies although the British adviser has slashed the amount he may levy.

"Kelantan has railroad service with Bangkok and Singapore now. A branch line came in from the north as far as the capital, Kota Bharu. Another finger line stretched toward it from the south. The fingers have joined and Kelantan's prosperity is assured for where the railroad goes in Malay peninsula rubber goes."

New Source Foreseen for News-Print Supply

Madison, Wis.—A source that will give a plentiful supply of news-print paper at lower cost has been found by the forest products laboratory of the University of Wisconsin.

Successful experiments conducted by the laboratory have resulted in the production of paper from eucalyptus wood grown in Sao Paulo, Brazil. A small roll run through the press of a newspaper here showed favorable printing qualities and ample strength for use in high-speed presses, experimenters said.

Dr. Edmundo Navarro de Andrade, who observed the experiment, said he believed that the new product would bring paper manufacture into prominence in Brazil. The paper can be produced at about half the cost of the present imported news print, the laboratory estimated.

The eucalyptus can be grown in California, New Mexico, Arizona and Florida, where the climate is such that the tree would probably reach pulp wood size in less than ten years, giving what research workers believe will be a perpetual supply of paper to fill the shortage caused by depletion of spruce.

Gets Highest Honor Conferred by Scouts

Miss Alta Ashley of Allston, Mass., a student at Mount Holyoke college, has received the golden eagle, highest honor that can be conferred on a scout. Miss Ashley also holds 20 merit badges, a senior life-saving medal of the Red Cross and a special merit medal.

Wild Dogs Are Aim of Big Game Hunter

New York—Harold White of Scarsdale, who recently returned from a hunting and collecting trip to Asia and Africa, will start a three-year expedition embracing both continents, the principal purpose of which is to round up for the American Museum of Natural History and the New York Zoological park in the Bronx specimens of a species of wild dog known in the Arabian mountains, between Italian and British Somaliland, as the rebe.

The rebe, which probably is a variety of the hyena dog, is a huge, hunched, impenetrable creature which hunts in packs. Mr. White has a personal record as well as a scientific interest in the rebe as on his recent trip a pack of the animals threatened him and all his baggage and it was not until he was shot from the back of his pack that he escaped.

The Intimate Diary of Colonel HOUSE

Woodrow Wilson's silent partner

DURING the seven years in which he was President Wilson's closest friend, Colonel House kept a diary. In it he wrote each day's events—while they were vivid and fresh in his mind—and with astounding frankness. From this diary and from his personal correspondence have been compiled "The Intimate Papers of Colonel House" which will appear for the first time on Sunday, January 31st and every day and Sunday thereafter, in the New York Herald Tribune.

Scores of Questions Settled

Here Colonel House tells many secrets which he alone knew and which Americans have argued about for years. He settles questions which have been the subject of conjecture and dispute. He tells how he came to support Wilson for the nomination—how their incomparable friendship started and developed—how Wilson was kept from having a break with Murphy and Tammany Hall which would probably have cost him the nomination—how Colonel House refused to take a cabinet position in order to retain his role of confidante and adviser to the President.

Here in the Intimate Papers of Colonel House—King George V., Kaiser Wilhelm, Lloyd George, King Albert of Belgium, and a host of other notables, as well as Bryan, Page, Baker, McAdoo, Burleson, Houston, Danahy and other prominent Democratic figures pass in review, their importance—and unimportance—revealed.

Until you have read "The Intimate Papers of Colonel House" your acquaintance with this period of history is not complete. These articles will appear for the first time on Sunday, January 31st in the New York Herald Tribune. They will continue daily and Sunday thereafter for six weeks. Don't miss a single day of this astounding story!

DECLINE OF SPOKEN DRAMA

It is to be hoped Jane Cowie's prediction of the end of spoken drama in another dozen years will never come true in our cities—and it is not likely to—but already it is rapidly coming true in the smaller towns. Already the cities only can well afford the spoken drama. The difficulty in the smaller places is not merely the competition of the cheaper and immensely popular "movies," though that by itself is deadly. In addition, there are the higher hotel charges, increased railway rates, heavier cost of shipping theatrical freight to say nothing of the higher pay actors must demand in order to live. To the movies are now added the radio, which keeps many possible patrons at home. And as the available points decrease in number, the "jumps" between them become longer and more expensive. No wonder the cry has gone up among producers of the spoken drama that the once profitable "road" is practically lost.

There would seem to be no help for this, but the spoken drama is needed and ought by all means to exist wherever it can be afforded. Apart from the appealing modulations of the human voice, the spectator of mimic life needs to be impressed through the ear as well as through the eye. Recognition of this need is shown in the music accompanying the photo-play—without which there is a strange lifelessness of effect—and in the careful limitation behind the screen of sounds, as of war, which the dramatic action calls for. Recognition of the need of even second rate spoken drama is indicated by the organization from local talent of amateur stock companies in many parts of the country.

AN IDEAL NATIONAL PARK.

If we are to preserve the Great Smoky Mountains as a national park, according to the proposition of Secretary Work's commission, it will be necessary for the other states to add four millions to the one million pledged by Tennessee and North Carolina, in order to purchase the tract of 600 square miles in the Southern Appalachians. The Federal government will not provide the needed sum, but is ready to take over the proposed new national park, guard, preserve and keep it inviolate for the pleasure of the people. Tennessee and North Carolina would not alone derive benefit in a motor-car age, for the proposed new national park is only 400 miles from St. Louis, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Washington (as the crow flies), 500 miles from Chicago and Philadelphia, and only 600 miles from New York and New Orleans.

The Great Smoky Mountain district is remarkable in richness of vegetation as well as in scenic beauty. It contains "seventy or eighty species of trees that have never been touched by the woodman's axe," and there are points upon the range "from which seven states may be seen." Some of the tulip trees are eight or nine feet in diameter. Nowhere else do so many hardwoods grow. 135 varieties having been counted. There are rare ferns and mosses, multitudes of blooming shrubs, hundreds of flowers, including orchids. There are eighteen peaks 6,000 feet high and higher, the loftiest only 31 feet lower than Mt. Mitchell in the Asheville district, which is 415 feet higher than Mt. Washington in New Hampshire, being therefore the highest east of the Rockies. The proposed tract in the Great Smokies has all the requisites of an ideal national park.

Referring to the "Pharisee's prayer quality" of a recent address of President Coolidge to the New York Chamber of Commerce, the London Daily News (as quoted by the Living Age) said: "The author of that prayer also thanked God that he was not an other man, and recorded with the same smiling self-satisfaction his financial righteousness and his virtuous self-restraint. No rich parents can ever have addressed the humblest poor children in a tone of more effectively effective guidance than this. It is by no means the first indication that, after being the richest and most powerful nation for three hundred years, England finds it pretty hard to endure being treated as a poor relation in need of patronizing advice.

ADVICE FROM A STOMACH SPECIALIST.

One of our celebrated stomach specialists tells us some things about cancer of the stomach. He states that forty-five per cent. that is finally one-half the cases of cancer, occur in the stomach, and that cancer of food and drink appear to have a bearing on the development of cancer.

While the ages from forty to sixty take to most of the cases, the greatest number occur between the ages of fifty and sixty.

A well developed case can usually be recognized because practically all have the three of four pronounced symptoms, that is, loss of appetite, vomiting, pain in the stomach, and loss of flesh.

Unfortunately the trouble very frequently occurs in folks who have never really had much indigestion or stomach trouble, and this specialist reports that in fully seventy-five per cent of his cases the onset came suddenly.

It is in this point that we should all take to heart. Not with the idea of frightening ourselves or others, but so that an early diagnosis can be made.

The age, the vomiting, pain, loss of weight, spoken of above, tell the story when the case is advanced, but what are the points in recognizing the condition early?

Our specialist tells us that "every person over forty years of age who is suddenly attacked with indigestion, that does not disappear after a brief period of careful treatment, should consider the possibility of cancer and should seek medical aid."

The whole point then is to remember the possibility of cancer and act accordingly. If after a short course of medical treatment no improvement is noted, and there is nothing else that appears likely to be the trouble then naturally one must face the likelihood of cancer. When cancer of the stomach is recognized early, fully ninety per cent are likely to recover if an operation is performed.

It may be worth much to us to keep in mind these practical points given to us by one of America's foremost stomach specialists.

CASES FOR THE COMMITTEE.

Consider for a moment the cases of John Fowler and Joshua Gidney, and get a picture of the struggle for independence as it was waged among the folks at home far away from the army camps.

Letter received by The New York Committee of Safety 150 years ago today from John Fowler:

"In doing a good natured act to oblige one of my customers, I have been unhappily drawn in to a suspected of being unfriendly to the country that gave me existence, although what I did was without any other design than to serve my neighbor, and, therefore, innocent; yet as I get my livelihood by keeping a public house, and as this matter of my having been suspected of being an enemy to my country, will become public, and spread abroad, even among my customers and country friends, and they, not knowing my innocence, may avoid me, and, therefore, it may become prejudicial to my business; I, therefore, entreat it as a favor, that whenever your honorable Board shall be fully satisfied of my innocence in this matter, that you will be pleased to give me such certificate, for me to publish to the world, of your being so satisfied, as shall restore me to the good opinion of the public, at least, that I may be left as I was found."

In the matter of Joshua Gidney of Rye Neck, New York, Resolution by the New York Committee of Safety, January 29, 1776:

"Ordered, That Joshua Gidney be manacled and shackled hands and feet, and kept in safe and secure custody, at the Upper Barracks until the further order of this Committee and in the interim that no person be suffered to speak to him but in the presence of the officer of the guard, and that no letter or paper writings be permitted to pass between the said Joshua Gidney and any other persons, or persons, whomsoever, and that he be denied the use of pen, ink and paper."

What it was that John Fowler had done to get himself disliked by the "liberty people" is not recorded. Probably he had admitted a Tory as a paying guest at his "public house" and for that reason had been boycotted by the patriots. In any case the one place where he could go for justice was to the Committee of Safety.

Joshua Gidney's trouble was he had failed to free himself from the charge of speaking patriot cannon at New Rochelle. The one place where he could be taken for punishment was to the same Committee of Safety.

Accord Farmers' Cooperative, Inc., Accord, N. Y.

Gentlemen: You will find herewith statements setting forth the financial condition of your Association at December 31, 1925, and showing the result of operations for the calendar year 1925.

I have proven the cash on hand and have verified the balance on deposit with the Kernhonson National Bank as of December 31, 1925, and I certify that the amount shown in the attached statement is correct.

The inventory of Merchandise was accepted without verification at the value placed thereon by your Manager.

Depreciation has been deducted at the rates authorized by your Board of Directors, and all necessary reserves as required by laws governing cooperative associations have been entered on the books.

In my opinion, the attached statement of assets, liabilities and surplus correctly sets forth the financial condition of your Association at December 31, 1925.

Respectfully submitted,

A. R. ATKINS

OWL AND VULTURE

"Ah," said Billy Barred Owl to Mrs. Barred Owl who was in the adjoining cage in the zoo, "well do I remember my adventures."

"I feel like telling them to someone and as you're the only one around I will tell them to you."

"You might ask me about it first," suggested Mrs. Barred Owl.

"Why don't you ask me if I would like to listen, or if I would be so good to listen? That would be more polite."

"True, true," said Billy Barred Owl. "Will you listen, Mrs. Barred Owl?"

"Gladly," said Mrs. Barred Owl, her two big eyes looking straight at Billy. She put her head down and with her gaze fastened on Billy she said:

"Yes, I will listen to you. To wit, to woo, I will listen to you!" She shrieked this in her loud and piercing voice.

"You have a voice like mine," said Billy. "It is what people call a wild and weird voice. But we don't bother about voices. We never expect to be opera singers and we don't care about joining the birds' chorus. We like the night and not the day, and many birds like the sun while we like the moon. Opera singers like electric lights to sing by, I believe, and that is far too bright for us."

"Our family name is Barred Owl and the thing we are famous for is our quiet way of flying."

"Well can I remember a moonlight night before I came to the zoo. I was going hunting. Creatures listened hard, for some time before I had been shrieking."

"Where is that Barred Owl they kept whispering to each other as mother birds trembled and little birds shook with fear."

"We dare hunt on moonlight nights because we can fly so noiselessly. Our soft feathers make that possible and I made no noise that night as I flew along."

"I had moved far away from the spot where I was shrieking but a little while before and yet not a bird—not a creature—knew that I was around. I had flown through the air without a sound and though the moon had seen me, he had said not a word, for the moon can't tell tales, ha, ha! Ah, I had a fine hunt, I did. I was clever and I was successful for I was a Barred Owl and I could fly noiselessly."

"To Wit, to Woo, I Will Listen to You."

"It's fine to be a Barred Owl," said Mrs. Owl proudly. But the Vulture not far away were thinking a number of thoughts."

"I am a king, not of a country, not of a river, nor of an ocean," the Vulture thought.

He stood on his branch and looked at Black Vulture who sat on a branch in his yard, with his shoulders hunched up so that he looked very strange.

His face was long, his beak looked sharp and cruel and his eyes looked as if he didn't care for anything or anyone in the world except himself.

"I am a king of vultures," thought King Vulture.

"Yes, that is my name, King Vulture. I wouldn't be king of a country for then I would have to bow to people when I went out riding."

"I would have great and tremendous things to think about and I would have to be good and great and noble so that people would look up at me."

"As I am a King of the Vultures I don't have to do anything of that sort."

"And I wouldn't be the king of a river nor of an ocean, although I am not sure whether there are kings of oceans and rivers. I don't suppose there are—but if there were I wouldn't want to be one."

"No, I would rather be the King of all the Vultures. I am always in my royal robes. My crown is of red and purple and golden and orange—all royal and noble colors. My feathered body is of white and yellow and black. I am not nearly so ugly as Black Vulture."

"My gray colors make up for my face."

Good Hole in His Head

Leonard was having a lively time, tripping from one room to another. He was warned to be careful or he'd get hurt, going at such speed.

Finally he fell against a sharp cornered table and cut quite a trail in his head. It was necessary for the doctor to put a plaster on it.

When the doctor came in to see him he would say: "I got a pretty good hole in my head, didn't I, doctor?"

Bordens Deny Merger Report

Borden Farm Products Semy Rumor to Dairyman's League—League Directors Recommend No Change in Fluid Price for Present—10 Per Cent Reduction in Class 3.

At the regular meeting of the directors of the Dairyman's League Cooperative Association, Inc., held at the New York office of the Association last week, no change was recommended for the present in the producers' price of fluid milk. The only change voted by the directors for February sales was a reduction of 10 per cent per 100 pounds in the price of Class three milk sold for the purpose of manufacturing condensed and evaporated milk.

In view of rumors that have been circulated among members of the League in some sections and have also been printed in some local papers, President Slocum read to the board a letter from the Borden Farm Products Company definitely denying reports of a merger of that company with other interests. These rumors had reported that the National Dairy Products Corporation was negotiating to gain control of the Borden Farm Products Company. Non-League as well as League farmers had been somewhat disturbed in some sections over these reports and this communication to the League from the largest milk distributor in New York city milk shed will be read with interest by all concerned. The letter follows:

George W. Slocum, president, Dairyman's League Co-operative Assn., Inc., 130 West 42nd Street, New York City.

My dear Mr. Slocum:

Our attention has been repeatedly called to rumors that associate our company in a contemplated merger with other milk interests.

In consideration of the fact that we make all of our milk purchases through your good offices and the possibility that these rumors reach your members, we feel justified in writing you and definitely disposing of them in so far as our company is concerned.

We advise you therefore that there are no foundations for such rumors. There is not now nor has there been at any time, consideration given by the officers or anyone else connected with our company looking toward sale or merger with any other milk interests; neither have we given any consideration to enlarging our own business similarly.

With the expressed hope that this information to you will definitely dispose of these rumors in the minds of yourself and those you represent, we are Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) PATRICK D. FOX, President.

J. D. Beardslee of New Berlin, director of the league from Otsego county, was elected second vice president to succeed John D. Smith, director from Delaware county, recently deceased. This is a fine recognition of the services which Director Beardslee has rendered the organization. He is one of the "old guard," having been elected director of the old league in 1913.

Henry Burden, director from Madison and Onondaga counties, was the unanimous choice of the board to succeed himself as league representative on the board of directors of the Grand League Federation Exchange.

The recommended schedule of prices for February for league milk is as follows:

- Class 1—$2.80. Field and cream when skim milk is sold in fluid form.
- Class 2-A—$2.10. Cream. Plus differentials for skim milk.
- Class 2-B—$2.15. Plain condensed milk, homogenized mixtures, ice cream.
- Class 2-C—$2.10. Soft cheese.
- Class 3-A—$2.20. Evaporated whole milk, sweetened whole condensed milk chocolate.
- Class 3-B—$2. Whole milk powder.
- Class 3-C—$2. Hard cheese.
- Class 4-A and B (butter and cheese based on market quotations).

MODENA.

Modena, Jan. 28.—The Ladies' Aid of the M. E. Church of this place gave their president, Mrs. George Dunsinberry, a pleasant surprise at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Terwilliger on Friday evening, January 22. She was presented with a white gold bar pin as a token of their appreciation. There were about 25 people present and a good time was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. E. E. Miller visited Mr. and Mrs. Hawley on Monday.

At a recent election of officers in the Modena Girl Scouts, the following were elected: Patrol I, patrol leader, Margaret Carroll; corporal, Blanche Terwilliger; Patrol II, patrol leader, Dorothy Smith; corporal, Dorothy Wagner; troop secretary, Maella Fairbridge; treasurer, Marjorie Hedges.

Miss Marion Palmer, who has been critically ill in Vassar Hospital for some time, is doing nicely.

Mrs. Hawley is recovering from a recent illness.

Many people are filling their ice houses at this time. The ice is reported to be from 10 to 12 inches.

The men of the M. E. Church are planning to give a clam chowder supper in the church kitchen on February 3.

The young people are enjoying good skating on Modena Lake.

Exhibit Haverd had the pleasure to call his home with an audience recently.

The fourth quarterly conference was held in the Methodist W. E. Church on Monday evening, Jan. 25. Many people were present and enjoyed their desire for Mr. Reynolds, the pastor, to remain for next year.

ALLIGERVILLE.

Alligerville, Jan. 28.—A hot supper will be served at the home of Mrs. Russell, Trowbridge, Friday evening, January 29 from six o'clock until all are served.

The following students are attending Kingston High School: Charlotte Atkins, Winchell Atkins, Calvin Rider, Virginia Smith. These entered in September. The following will enter the February term: Ethel Lawrence, Harriet Christensen, Nathan Trowbridge and Robert Thompson.

Mrs. and Mrs. H. B. Dewitt attended the Home Bureau meeting at Accord on Monday.

Mrs. Mary Krum has come to Kingston for the winter.

Mrs. Mary Schoonmaker is spending the remainder of the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Milne Wagar at Jamaica.

Mothers, Earl Schoonmaker and sister Mrs. Margaret Wagar and William West have come to Florida for a few weeks.

MICROBES HOUSED IN A "MENAGERIE"

Germs Fatal to Man, Bees and Plant Found in London Institute.

London.—More deadly than adder, swifter than the tiger, more stealthy than the leopard and in sufficient numbers to lay low all Britain, more than 2,000 "terrors" to man and beast are housed in a Chelsea gardens structure, and thousands pass the building daily unmindful of the lurking death within. Inside the house bacteriologists, and lending surgeons, physicians and scientists of the empire handle the death-dealing "monsters" with a nonchalance that would shock the layman.

It is Menagerie of Microbes, the National Collection of Type Cultures maintained at the Lister Institute of Preventive Medicine, and the "monsters" are listed, labeled and cared for with even greater solicitude than that shown for ferocious animals in the London zoo. In the new catalogue just issued by the Medical Research Council upward of 2,000 living strains of bacteria and protozoa are listed as inmates of this scientific menagerie.

The catalogue not only lists the "monsters" alphabetically, but includes their scientific names with a complete description of their source and habits. It also gives a list of the subjects with reference to their relative organisms.

Special Temperatures.

Just as the wild animals in the zoo require certain temperatures in which to thrive, so do the "monsters" in the menagerie. Some of the varieties insist upon polar atmosphere, others demand the heat of the tropics, and others will live only in the balmy winds of the temperate zone. The vagaries and demands of the frequently invisible terrors are such that nothing will interfere with pleasure and comfort.

From all parts of the world scientists and bacteriologists have sent to the Lister Institute the minute "monsters" so that the private collection of the Institute, long famous, has been so greatly augmented that it is said to surpass any in the world. For years the Pasteur Institute maintained a collection in Paris, another in Prague and yet another in the Museum of Natural History, New York. Each of these, however, were limited in scope, and five years ago the Medical Research Council enlisted the co-operation of the Lister Institute to expand the Chelsea gardens collection to its present size. To it also was added the type culture of fungi gathered by the British Mycological Society.

As a result of the move in 1920, it now is possible for any surgeon or physician, any bacteriologist, pathologist or researcher in protozoology, or the scientific adviser of any industry to find in the Chelsea Gardens menagerie living cultures of the majority of the known strains of microbes. Here, too, he can obtain authentic knowledge of the animals with which to compare the organisms in which he is interested.

Last year more than 4,000 cultures were distributed to interested workers. While many of these went to industries, the bulk of them were used to save human and animal lives. The collection is not limited to malevolent organisms, despite the fact that the bulk of cultures are of those that cause disease in man, animals and plants. For instance there are examples of tubercular pests of tobacco which, taken from the finer strains of tobacco, when propagated and isolated may be used to improve inferior varieties. Then there is a mold from Camembert and Roquefort cheese which, when grafted on the plain English cheese, imparts to it the flavor of the foreign varieties.

Few Are Visible.

The naked eye is able to discern few of the "animals" in this compact menagerie. There are some that can be seen and these are relegated to a prominent "cage" in the Institute room.

But it is the invisible "terrors" that interest the scientists and bacteriologists. There are more than thirty strains, or species, of the genus Aspergillus in the living state. These were taken from the soy products used in making pickles in China, from the dust in the London subways, from the mealy bug of the sugar cane and from the wild animals in the London zoo.

Of the tubercle bacillus alone there are more than twenty specimens or strains. Some come from human cases of lupus, or from generalized tuberculosis. Others come from bovine types, avian types from birds, and one from a kangaroo of the zoo. Then there are the cold-blooded types from the alligator, tortoise, frogs and fishes.

One of the curiosities is a culture of the bacillus botulinus from a food poisoning case in Lough Maroo, Scotland, in 1922. This is regarded as invaluable in case of another victim of the disease turning up. This is the disease that baffled the United States medical fraternity some time ago when so many were poisoned by eating spoiled ripe olives.

Another of the "feature exhibits" are the trypanosomes of sleeping sickness. Another shows the types of the gignea disease of cattle in tropical Africa.

BLOOMINGTON.

Bloomington, Jan. 28.—There will be a hot roast pork supper on Tuesday, February 2, in the basement of the church, which the Ladies' Aid Society will serve, beginning at 5.30 p. m., until all are served. The menu will consist of hot roast pork with brown gravy, mashed potatoes, peas, apple sauce, cabbage salad, pickles, jelly, bread and raised biscuits, cake and coffee. The young ladies will give a free entertainment after supper. Cake and cream will be for sale. A cordial invitation is extended everybody to come and enjoy the supper and also entertainment.

Church services at 9.45 a. m. and Sunday school following. Sunday evening services at 7.30. The Rev. C. V. W. Bedford, invites the congregation all to come to these services.

Mrs. Jennie Ingersoll who was called here the past week from Poughkeepsie on account of the illness of her brother, Fred Chatterton, returned to her home on Monday evening.

Jacob Misall of West New Brighton, Staten Island, who spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Chatterton, returned on Monday evening to his home.

Radio is the order of the day in this place, nearly everybody is getting one.

William Bailey and Mrs. John Merrill of Port Richmond, L. I., came on Tuesday evening to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chatterton's, as Mr. Chatterton is seriously ill at this writing.

Newburgh Team Also Crippled

While the Maroon and White basketball team is experiencing plenty of trouble because of ineligibility of players, the Newburgh Academy team which will meet the O'Learymen at the High School gym this evening is also having its share of hard luck. Four of the Newburgh players will not be able to play this evening. Kirk, a first string player for the Academy team, is ill and Nugent of the second squad is also out for the same reason while Steight and Lunny of the second outfit are ineligible.

This first match of the second half of the Duso League race will probably find the teams on even terms as three men of O'Leary's squad are lost for tonight's affair. Short, Vogel and Wonderly are not eligible for the match because of scholastic difficulties. Consequently Coach O'Leary will probably begin tonight's contest with Porter and Hurley up front, Smith at the pivot post and Schell and Shultz in the back court. The local mentor will have to choose a player from the second team to complete his second quartet.

Lace Mill Won Three Straight

The Lace Mill bowling team was in fine shape Thursday evening and won all three games from the Kroge team at the "Y" alleys. Bedford, of the Lace Mills, scored the high of the evening with 192 in one game and 188 pins in another. The score:

Lace Mill.
Finch	169	143	137
Eckert	161	166	168
Bedford	148	192	188

Relativity Still Holds

In spite of all attacks, the theory of relativity is still on a firm foundation, according to Dr. Charles E. St. John of the Mount Wilson observatory. All the tests of the theory suggested by Einstein, and several he did not think of have supported the theory when put to trial.

One of the crucial tests of relativity consists in measuring the spectrum shift. If light has mass as the Einstein theory postulates it is subject to gravitational attraction. Therefore the sun would tend, at least slightly, to pull back its light even at the moment it sends it out. This would lead to the displacement of the spectrum of that source of light as compared with the spectrum of a source of light having little gravitational attraction. Like an arc light here on earth, Doctor St. John made this test with delicate instruments and found a predicted shift.

Modern Merchandising

A motorist, stopped at a filling station on the outskirts of a village on his way to visit one of his wife's relatives he had never seen. He had heard that the relative had a flourishing business, and he decided to use the opportunity to learn something about him. "What kind of store does John Miller run at Toad Rock?" he asked the service man.

Well, I don't know exactly how to describe it," was the reply. "He has motor car parts for sale; burglar alarms and poisons. He deals in real estate; paints houses; mends telephones as justice of the peace; runs the post office, sells stamps, hams and molasses, and takes boarders. I guess you'd call it a drug store."

RADIO EXERCISES AS CURE FOR COLDS.

New York, Jan. 23.—A prominent Park avenue physician reports remarkable improvement in many cases of chronic colds as a result of morning settling-up exercises taken over the radio.

His statement is included in a symposium of medical opinion on the value of morning exercises as broadcast daily by Arthur E. Bagley from the tower of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company through Stations WEAF, WEEL and WCAP.

"There is a type of case I see a great deal of this time of year," he states; "cases of chronic colds, nasal or bronchial infections, where lack of exercise is a characteristic finding—such cases, plus cold showers after the radio exercises, improve remarkably."

The exercises are given practically universal praise by the physicians as of special value in cases of constipation and other disorders due to sedentary life.

"They will certainly aid elimination of effete matter through the kidneys, bowels and skin," states a Massachusetts practitioner. "Posture will be made correct. Stiffened joints will be loosened up. Backaches will be very much benefited and all the muscles of the body strengthened and toned up."

In common with a large number of his fellow physicians, he gives a warning about the use of the exercises. "For example, a stiffened tubercular joint should not be mobilized," he points out.

"In certain types of heart disease and in high blood pressure cases it is advisable to be very careful in taking the exercises."

The doctors point out that persons not in possession of normally good health should take the exercises only under supervision of the family physician. Mr. Bagley continually emphasizes this caution in his correspondence "over the air."

The reports revealed a widespread practice of prescribing the exercises for a great variety of ailments, including overweight. "I know of no better therapy to prescribe for the entire populace of this country," declares a Washington physician; "while a Baltimore practitioner considers such exercises invaluable, and 'they should prove an important factor in the increase of longevity,' he adds.

Several physicians state that the newcomer to the radio class should take it easily the first few days as the tempo may be too fast for them.

An observation appearing frequently in the physician's reports is the superiority of the radio over all other means of getting people to take the drills they need. A Baltimore physician states "I have found that the psychological thrill of being directed through the air to the accomplishment of very charming music, takes with many where the former daily dozen methods failed entirely."

Another physician declares "It does not seem as though you were doing it by your lonesome, and consequently it is taken as a pleasure and not a duty."

Local Plant Faces Big Business Year

Despite a slight falling off in business during the latter part of 1925, the present outlook for 1926 at the plant of the Universal Road Machinery Company of this city promises, according to present indications, to far surpass that of the preceding year.

Orders received during the month of January are for a 15x30 crusher for the Central Falls Stone Company of Central Falls, Rhode Island. This is the largest size of crusher manufactured by the local concern and has a capacity of 500 tons of crushed stone per day. This is the second plant which has been shipped within the past year to this concern, the other being the next size to it and having proved satisfactory, the Central Falls Company have put in a larger plant to work in conjunction with the one already in operation.

An 8x14 crusher was shipped to the Anti-Borax Compound Company of Fort Wayne, Indiana; an 8x14 plant to E. H. Rebert at Carlisle, Pa.; 2-14 foot separators to the Eureka Flint & Spar Company of Trenton, New Jersey.

The Universal have also sold a power grader to the town of Hardsburgh; a large horse drawn grader to the town of Kingston and 12 carloads of concrete and corrugated pipe to various townships in Ulster and Dutchess counties.

From the prospects which are coming in daily, the local company look for one of the best years they have had since being in business.

ALBANY CHURCH PLACES MEMORIAL TO SCIENTIST

A most interesting favrite glass window has been placed in the Sunday school room of the First Presbyterian Church of Albany, as a gift from the church, Dr. Albert Vander Veer of that city acting as chairman of the committee. It is a memorial to Joseph Henry, eminent scientist. The window is made up of three rectangular lights which depict Joseph Henry teaching a group of boys. He is portrayed in the foreground of the center opening, standing erect, clad in the blue coat, grey trousers and high stock of the period, and demonstrating, by means of a rude dynamo and a bell, the power of electric magnetism. In the left and right openings the boys are grouped at their benches along the side walls, the purples, reds and greens of their coats lending richness to an otherwise subdued color scheme.

The three sides of the school room are windowed with dull oak above which the rays of the sun filter through small oblong windows cut in the rough walls.

Dignified in its very simplicity of composition, the window is an example of that rare art which combines realism with true beauty in the portrayal of its subject.

At the base of the three openings the text and inscription appear as follows:

Master Scientist 1799 Joseph Henry 1878 Derout Christian. Baptized in this church. The window was designed and made at the ecclesiastical department of the Tiffany Studios of New York city.

Little Girls Favor Velvetene Coats in Black or Gay Tones. Little girls between the ages of 2 and 6 seem to have taken quite strongly to velvetene coats, whether in black or in gay shades.

A young child obviously dressed up for the holiday season was seen on the avenue in a black velvet coat with scalloped hemline, strikingly set off by a collar of white fur. She wore a white velvet hat, and white shoes and stockings.

Beaver was noted as the chosen fur on another coat of black velvetene, making, besides the collar and cuffs, one long pointed pocket on the right side. The matching hat was perched turned up at front, and a pom-pom of beaver hung from a cord at the side.

Many examples of velvetene hat and coat sets have been observed on tots strolling on the avenue and in the shops, in tones of blue, and usually in king's blue or pencil blue, with a touch of fur to trim both hat and coat.

A smart tot chose a coat of phantom red velvetene with a double tier scalloped cape effect, and, of course, a little hat to match.

Cloth coats sponsored by the very young frequently chose soft shades of green and blue. An attractively clad little girl was seen in a coat of earnest coloring with side flares headed by a wide strip of beaver, which also made a little collar.

Children at Lake Placid dress very much as do their elders—in bright-hued, comfortable knicker suits with knitted caps, scarfs and mittens, and also duplicate their older sisters' mannish leather boots.

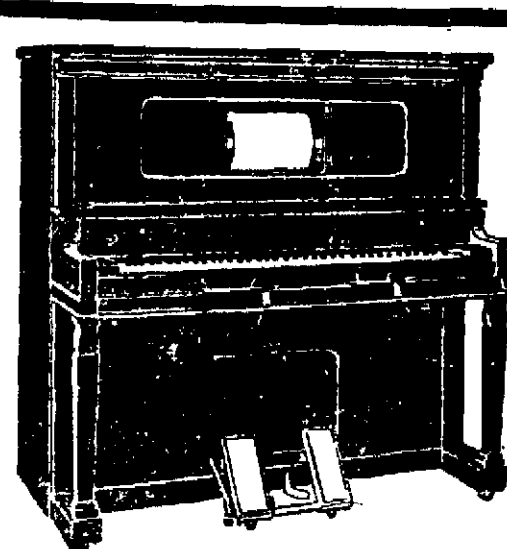

At the risk, skater suits of heavy flannel are striking because of their clear bright orange tone. Another young skater wears an abbreviated circular skirt of black velvet with white tulle neck sweater.

A youthful skirt combines black velvet knickers and red leather and leathers for her costume, with a scarf of Scotch plaid tied about the bottom of the windbreaker for a touch.
